Scoring of Instrument:
Responses are recorded on a Likert-type scale with response choices across a 5, 6 or 7 point scale depending on the scale subsection. The lower anchor for each response choice is 0 (zero) to give subjects the option of indicating that that item does not apply to them rather than forcing a ‘missing data’ issue. Possible scores range from 0 to 145, with high scores on the Desire, Activity Level, Arousal, Orgasm and Satisfaction indicating more positive feelings or functioning in these areas. High scores on the Relationship subsection indicate a long-term relationship with a single partner while high scores on Techniques indicates a greater variety of sexual methods and activities.
